What kind of WKND type are you?
The challenger. You gather experiences and are a living asset. In general, you are not interested in material things. You like being sum- marized by friends and acquaintances and having almost everyone, and ‘everyone’ knows who you are. You are close tolaughter and only see opportunities, nothing is difficult or impossible.
The enjoyer of life. You can’t resist physical experiences, the warmth of the sun, and the soft hands when you get massage or when some- one nourishes your feet and as a result of tasty food and well-balanced drinks. You are comfortable and instead of being hungry you go juggling around as the outdoor seating of a café, applauding the runners. The idea of running or cycling has not even hit you. Why would you?
The culture geek. You are thoughtful, reflective, and think first and then talk - or choose to be quiet and save your opinion. You like the beautiful, that is well designed and created with honest intentions. You read, see and experience the beautiful arts, but are very impressed - really impressed.
The shopper. When the credit card is glowing and you’ve collected several shopping bags, you will be delighted. You really need what you buy. On the other hand, the buying itself is a need- and you know each brand’s signal value. Wandering in shopping malls is the best. Online shopping also works but clicking on the ‘buy button’ does not give the same satisfaction.
